You know what I'm talking about - really good lookin' on the outside, nice and sweet on the inside, and then it's all - 'Oh noes! I just busted all my teeth on this Pit here!'. Now... your face is telling me that you've got questions about tracking down &lt;color orange&gt;Tips&lt;/color&gt; - no... maybe it's about how you &lt;color orange&gt;Align&lt;/color&gt; yourself? Hmm... nah... maybe it's about your &lt;color orange&gt;Supergroup&lt;/color&gt; dudes and girlies, right? Tell you the truth, I can't really tell with the way your face is all scrunched up like that. How's about you just ask me already, cool?"

That super-big one gets your name in the book, or history books, depending on how you look at it. Once you go through with that one, there ain't no goin' back. Or even better... a huge sack of cash.&lt;br&gt;&lt;br&gt;&lt;color orange&gt;The Alignment System will allow your character to become one of four different alignments - Hero, Vigilante, Villain, or Rogue. "P2256655106" "If you wanna make a change in your life, follow those Tips to the pot of gold at the end, you know what I'm saying? A Hero may get fed up with that one boogeyman always breaking out of prison and decide to solve the problem once and for all as a Vigilante. Or a Vigilante realizing that light at the end of the Tunnel o' Justice is actually a train may turn around and do it the safe Hero way.&lt;br&gt;&lt;br&gt;Villains could get smart and leave all the power-grabbing to suckers, living on Easy Street as a Rogue. And a Rogue may get tired of being kicked around and start doing the kicking themselves as a Villain.&lt;br&gt;&lt;br&gt;Then again, a Vigilante can always take it a step too far when they realize that murder, well, it's illegal from what I hear. BAM!!! Villain. Or, who knows... a Rogue can kick the history professors in the yoozies and show them they've been the biggest Hero of that story the whole time. "P1289595387" "Well, that's when everything changes for you. You get a brand new lease on life, I guess. yeah... the same goes with all those other ideas you had, those Tips. Total garbage at that point. "P1161470793" "Supergroups? Oh, you mean all those groups of people going 'For Freedom!' or 'Smash Everything!' or 'Please Don't Kill Us!'? What happens to those dudes? Nothin'.

I mean, Heroes and Vigilantes are still chillin' with each other, and Villains and Rogues still hang out doing the same thing they do every night. Just don't go confusing your buddies. You can't get the leader of all your buddies killed and expect said buddies to be, well, all buddy-buddy with you anymore. I mean, c'mon... let's get real here. Heroes and Villains mix together like water to - uh - oil.

Characters who switch sides by becoming a Villain or a Hero will not be removed from their supergroup, but will no longer be able to access various benefits granted to a Hero/Villain supergroup."

"P2029367327" "You gotta be kiddin' me! Can you still go into your Supergroup's Base? Dude... would you invite over for dinner the dude who just doublecrossed you several days ago? Or open the door to a guy you know is just going to set all your captives free? Sheesh.

So no. You can't. Heck, deep down inside you may be the biggest saint among all your friends, or the most deceptive of your dear dastardly denizens, but that doesn't matter a whit. They ain't lettin' you in anymore.

A Hero/Vigilante(or Villain/Rogue) who is in a Villain/Rogue(or Hero/Vigilante) Supergroup can not access any SG benefits such as bases, colors, or earning Prestige. A character is not removed from the SG, so if they eventually return to their former alignment, they will be returned all supergroup privileges.

In the meantime, I need you to keep an eye on the place until I get back. Oh yeah, and I need you to fake my death.' Yeah... I totally fell for that one. Seriously? He was goooooood.

The point is... if you're going to switch over, you better trick someone into taking over the role as leader BEFORE you switch, or you may get some dude running the show who you've never even heard of.

You may be some goody-two-shoes hero now, but some of your old partners in crime might still hang out with you... maybe not in public, though. Or worse, though everyone may think you're the biggest heel that ever lived, you might have a friend here or there who knows that you're still working the biggest gig you've ever been given. What sucks is when you're the last guy on the job and you've gotta make new friends to team with.

But a word of warning... don't EVER let 'em know who you are, got it? It just... well, it just makes things easier while you're waiting.

By the way, I'm Pit.
